PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

Harry Reynolds advises high-net-worth families and family offices on Malta trust and foundation structuring, cross-border succession planning, and Malta residency and citizenship matters. His clients span Europe, the GCC, and North Africa, drawn by Malta's position as an EU jurisdiction with a mature private wealth framework.

He sits on the STEP Malta committee, which keeps him inside the trust and estate planning community as Malta's private wealth framework continues to mature — often ahead of when those developments reach general publication. That vantage point mattered directly in one of his larger recent matters, restructuring a Gulf-based family office's €95M Malta trust across assets held in four separate jurisdictions.

APPROACH TO CLIENT WORK

Harry treats discretion as the starting condition of private client work rather than an add-on to it, restricting file access inside the firm to the specific team members actually working a matter rather than relying on general goodwill. On succession files spanning several jurisdictions, he insists on identifying the moment a family's individually aligned interests genuinely diverge, and says so plainly rather than continuing to advise everyone as though no tension exists.
